MUST DO SOMETHING ABOUT CANCER

From Pearl Harbor to V-J Day the United States lost only 300,000 men and women from its armed forces. The reader will rightly exclaim, "Only! Don't you think that is enough?" Surely, we do think that is enough; far too much of our best manhood and womanhood to be sacrificed to the god of war.

But, listen if you please, as alarming and regretful as the above reference is, here is something even more startling and, if possible, even more remorseful. During that same period—between Pearl Harbor and V-J Day—614,884 Americans died, right here at home, victims of cancer. 14,000 American men, women and children die every month every day—of cancer!

And yet, it is possible that the worst is yet to come? The trend, so far, is definitely not toward anything better. If we—all of us Americans—don't do something more about this matter of combating the dread disease of cancer, and do it now, according to Dr. Charles E. Tucker, educational director of the Kentucky division of the American Cancer Society, "an estimated 17,000,000 Americans now living are destined to die of cancer."

However, Dr. Tucker reminds us that there is some hope in facing these terrible facts. That there is hope if, and we must repeat, if we hasten to do something about it. That hope as held out by cancer specialists in the medical profession is, "if detected in time and treated promptly and effectively cancer can be cured in many cases."

Pleading for universal cooperation, Dr. Tucker says the tide should and must be turned. He reminds us that, "Despite the giant strides in medicine and science in the last decade, despite the wonderful achievement of having increased the average life expectancy of the American people from 49 to 65 years since 1900, the death rate from cancer has continued to climb alarmingly."

The question has been asked, and it is well to ask it again, "What must we do?" But the thing that will actually count is an aggressive response. Generally speaking, our scientific advisers agree, "We must press a comprehensive attack against this scourge on all fronts; through education, adequate treatment and scientific research."

Jeffersonians readers, let's not let it be said that we failed to do our part.

HAVE WE NO LEG TO STAND ON?

Realizing that it is a rather precarious limb on which the editor of a secular newspaper projects himself when he trespasses in the field of religion for editorial comment, we are, nevertheless, moved to venture a bit in that direction today. It is, however, a matter of fundamental concern regarding which we summon the aid of our readers.

We realize, furthermore, that orthodox Christianity needs no defense from this quarter. But believing, as we do, that there has, in recent years, been too much blasting at the Rock Ages by certain national centers of our so-called Christian nation, it appears timely for all who would defend the American way of life to base such defense on the recognition of, and a frontal attack upon, the insidious evils that are sapping that life to its very center.

So, when a minister succeeds in making the front pages of the metropolitan press by accusing Christianity of "spiritual arrogance," and suggesting that "if 'Christianity' is the dominion of the way to salvation, it seems to be time for all true followers of the lowly Nazarene, who said 'Ye cannot serve God and Mammon,' to take a stand for the Triune God. Our civil laws were founded on the doctrine. Our forefathers' belief in the scriptures and their fidelity to their teachings are largely responsible for what America is today—and not for the trend in which she has been drifting recently; drifting largely because of the position taken by not a few so-called liberal religious leaders, such as the one quoted by Dr. Frederick M. Eliot, president of the American Unitarian Association.

When will these people, who like to refer to their tolerance, cease vacillating and compromising? If a man is going to believe something it ought to be worth enough for him to stand up for it. Its principles should challenge his courage and fidelity. An Old Testament character once challenged the Hebrew people with the statement, "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve." There was to be no more halting between two opinions for Joshua. And the people followed this man who said, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

How can America be a Christian nation—in fact, how can she be anything, unless she is actually something? Shall we go back to the time and the ways of the Greeks, who erected a shrine to every known god and then, just to make sure they were leaving none out, put out one to the "unknown god?"

There isn't much of a gap between the teaching, "It doesn't make any difference what one believes," and the practice of doing as one pleases.

COUNTRY HICKS

It used to be regarded as inevitable that country people were just "country hicks." That was what was expected, according to the jokes and plays of the time. But, a country fellow was a "hick seed." He was usually shown in cartoon and in plays with a straw hat with some strongly hair sticking out from a hole in it. He was either barefooted or wore hob-nailed brogans. His face wore an expression midway between that of Millett's Man with the Hammer and Ben's Miser. The finishing touch was a straw hat lightly between his ears. When he talked, he talked as only a single character can talk, though millions supposed that he was the true-blue article. (pronounced "blue" with much of the accent on the second syllable). And for years many people have had to wonder what that settled Rube or Silas or whatever name would best describe a country fellow, a sort of happy moron who could do not anything else but farm.

According to some rather unfortunate articles in print about Kentucky, one would think that the same idea still prevails. Metropolitan papers feature Kentuckians as if they were either only beginnings in the upward struggle toward civilization, or were degenerates who had slipped back to semi-savagery. It seems surprising when these same degenerates or primitives rise up and act to be heard.

Now the plain truth about our rural areas today is that, while self-satisfied urban people like so many of us have been going on and on contented with their conception of country life, there has arisen a new country life that resembles popular conceptions of it about as much as L. I. Abner resembles the typical Kentuckian. Even the remotest counties have active 4-H Clubs, and Future Farmers of America clubs, and Home-makers Clubs, and Utopia Clubs, and Farmers' Unions. From a very intimate connection with these organizations as a well-wisher and an honorary member of them, I have come to feel that there is nothing else like them for what they have done and are doing for country people. I have attended literally dozens of their meetings and have yet to find one that is as staid and formal and dry as any another meeting I have attended that was supposed to be made up of the elect.

I have had my thinking pepped up more from such country-people's clubs than by any other series of organizations. They are live, purposeful, nearly always well managed, connected, and in no way self-conscious or self-important. The best thing about them is that they are made up of people who enjoy being together, who have common problems, who are not trying to climb social, and who ask no odds of anybody. The growth of fine young people in these organizations is one of the wonders of our time. In my years after year to the 4-H Club boys and girls shine in their poise and independence. Formerly I sometimes found farm children who somewhat hesitated to say that they had grown up on the soil; that just does not happen now. It has been years since I have heard a college youngster lament his rural rearing. As compared with social life in small towns and even many large cities, that of the country boys and girls of today is away ahead, thoroughly adequate for wholesome living. When I think of the degenerate thing called social life that I used to meet in villages when I was a public-school teacher, I marvel at the good times that earlier generation missed by not having these organizations.

I wish heartily that some of the highbrow critics of rural life in Kentucky would go to the country itself and see what is going on rather than take their cue from urban critics who know little or nothing about the subject. And I can assure the snootiest critic of rural Kentucky that his presence in a typical farm organization group would in no way disturb the equilibrium of the people present; they have seen much finer people than he and their meetings all over the land.

Sparks and Sundries

By Samuel H. Stuart

Early in our farming experience, in another community in Kentucky, we rented a place from a farmer who had decided to break up housekeeping due to the death of his wife. Not long after we moved in, one day this man was passing and he costed my father to enquire why a member of our family had failed to acknowledge his presence and was certainly ungrateful before. Dad told him it was undoubtedly due to his seeing him and was certainly ungrateful.

"Well," he said, "I just wanted to be sure there weren't any hard feelings about anything."

Later, we learned that it was necessary to "cut" him—he never seemed to be sure there weren't any hard feelings about anything.

It is fortunate that everyone is not so particular about having their salutation arranged in their regard—there would be a deal of apologizing needed in these days of rapidly increasing automobiles, when even the quickest eye may fail to see a salute or some seldom safe to conclude that "cutting" is intended, nowadays, unless there are several repeats. Nearly everyone has a good reason (or been passed by) friends with out seeing them at all. To one who doesn't indulge in the rather infantile form of insult called "cutting"—though undoubtedly having given plenty of occasion for the practice of this gentlemanly make such an enquiry if anyone seemed to "cut" him—he never seemed to be sure there weren't any hard feelings about anything.

In a three-way conversation with a wage-earner and an employer, the latter a proprietor of a retail store and the former a customer, I mentioned the relative strike difficulties. The worker was the first to speak. "I had more to spend," he recalled, "when I made two dollars a day—now I make $1.38 an hour."

The reason for such an apparent anomaly as increased wages and less to spend is, of course, money is in short supply. Prices go up, inevitably, in concert with every rise in wages and there is little benefit gained, if indeed, there is not some loss. Two dollars a day, when the worker was a dime a pound is more pay in steaks than when one gets over ten dollars a day and steak is sixty-five cents. The pay has increased five-fold but the steaks are more than six times as high.

As steak has the same food value as a dime, the money has been depreciated. Commodities have the same value since the industrial revolution, which gave birth to labor unions. It is the fallacy of a dollar that is not a dollar any more. The money they can't believe that money has a variable value, even when its purchasing power is shrinking before their eyes!

THE KINGDOM STRENGTHENED AND ENLARGED

LESSON TEXT—11 Samuel 6:12-17, 25

David was the great king of Israel. His life and reign are of unusual interest and the Bible gives much information about him. In the rapid survey of Israel's history we have been studying in our series, we have just begun a lesson on the people of the north, Israel, and they recognized him as king (1 Sam. 5:1-5).

This united the kingdom was ready to move forward, by the blessing of God—and that is the story before us in our lesson.

I. The Lord Was With Them (vv. 6-10).

A united people! How important that is in the affairs of the nations. Nothing is more disturbing or a greater hindrance than internal friction. We ought to deal quickly and decisively with any group or force in the life of our nation which is clearly divisive or disloyal.

Thus, then, the Lord was with them. It is God's people in the Christian church stand together in undivided loyalty to Christ, our King, and in loving devotion to one another.

Jerusalem, which was to be the "city of David," which figure so prominently not only in history but in prophecy, had to be wrested from the hands of the Jebusites, and established as the sacred city and the capital of the Jewish nation.

Note that the kind and considerate king was not a weakling. He knew how to fight and to win. We are inclined to interpret, but evidently does not mean that David was cruel. The Jebusites trusted their best soldiers to the wall, and David said to them, "Let us take these cripples."

We in verses 9 and 10 that David was not only a fighter, but also a builder. He began then the development of Jerusalem, the great city of which we are yet to hear wonderful things.

II. The Lord Delivered Them (vv. 17-21).

The Philistines, Israel's constant enemy, had control of much of the land west of the Jordan. As soon as they heard that the people were now united under a young aggressive king they laid plans to destroy his power almost before he could start.

The Philistines were clever, but they were not without a God. He was smart; he counted God into his plans. He asked the Lord what to do and the answer was, "Get up and fight." He did it.

We may well learn from this that prayer, consultation with God, must come before any successful campaign for him. Inquire of him to be assured of victory.

Not to here that there are battles in which the Lord expects us to go up boldly right into the face of a mighty enemy, and take the victory by faith!

Sometimes we are afraid to meet the enemies of the cross with boldness, choosing rather to compromise for the sake of peace. It never works. That is the way of defeat.

III. The Lord Went Before Them (vv. 22-25).

Defeated once so decisively that they had to run away from their sacred images (v. 21), the enemy sought for another attack.

It is ever thus—and foolish is the Christian who thinks that victory wins a war. After spiritual victory Satan redoubles his efforts and strikes while the believer is resting on his laurels—if he is foolish enough to do it. Here again we say, be on guard!

Observe that the Lord worked differently this time. David inquired again, but this time the word was, "Thou shalt not go up." Israel was to come up from the rear to the Philistines, and not to attack until the wind in their faces told that God had gone before to smite the enemy.

That is a time for straight out frontal attack on the enemy. There is also a time when God wants us to stand back and let him work out our deliverance. Sometimes that is harder to do than to attack, but we must obey his word.

How shall we know which to do? By asking God. Prayer must always precede action—and then the action will be right!

Valley Station News

By Mrs. F. B. Smith

After a severe illness of two or three months, Mr. Lanson A. Beah passed away in his 49th year Tuesday, April 8, at 8:30 a.m. He was born in Ohio, and had gone for special treatment after all else had failed. He was tenderly cared for by his wife, sister and other loved ones of the family.

He was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Beah of Johnsontown, where he was born and reared and spent a part of his married life. He was a home-loving boy and possessed a kindly feeling for the aged; loved farming and was industrious with it, which of course meant success.

He is the beloved husband of Mrs. Rosa Baker Beah, father of a devoted son, Lanson Raymond Beah, and is also survived by two grandchildren, his devoted parents, a brother, Conrad Beah of Louisville, two sisters, Helen Swearingen of Valley Station and Mrs. Edith Smith of Louisville and a nephew, George L. Smith, also of Valley Station.

Funeral services were held at W. G. Hardy's Chapel, 4101 Dixie Highway at Shively, Friday, April 11, at 2 p.m. with Rev. R. F. Doll of Beechland in charge. Interment in Louisville Memorial Park. Sympathy is deeply expressed.

His wife's two sisters, Mrs. Frank Lewis of 312 Garrard St., Covington, better known as Miss Alberta Baker, and Mrs. Robert Dye of Irvington attended the funeral and spent a few days with the relatives before returning home. Billy Dye, who accompanied his mother, will stay among the relatives a while.

Mrs. Sophie Krusenklas Torstadt of Valley Station, Route 1, Cane Run Road, passed away in her 78th year, Friday, April 11, at 8:55 a.m. at her residence.

Beloved mother of Arthur J., William H., Robert D. and Clarence B. Torstadt; devoted sister of Mrs. Lizzie Lang of Endicott, Miss Mary Krusenklas and Mrs. Minnie Stucker, William Krusenklas, Valley Station, Route 1, Cane Run Road, and Fred Krusenklas, Leroy, Kansas. Also surviving are two grandchildren, Bobby and Valida Torstadt, and great-grandchild, Valida Ann Torstadt.

Funeral services were held Monday, April 14, at 2:30 p.m. at Owen Funeral Home, 2611 Virginia Ave. Burial was in Resthaven Cemetery. Our personal sympathy is extended to those former neighbors.

An added sadness was felt in the illness of Miss Mary Krusenklas who is at the Deaconess Hospital and did not see her sister. We hope she will soon recover.

The B. T. U. of Beechland has been taking a study course each night this week. The "Y. U." will have their usual meetings Thursday.

Cracking Down on Communists

In the foundations of the United Nations were laid at the Dumbarton Oaks Conference in Washington nearly three years ago, the Nations pledged themselves to maintain international peace and security, and to cooperate in establishing political, economic and social conditions favorable to the attainment of these objectives. The Charter specifically precludes U. N. from intervening in the internal affairs of any nation. There were 51 nations that signed up as original members of the United Nations.

The trouble with the United Nations is that the largest nations in the beginning have all been violated. Evidently Russia is the villain that has upset the world peace agreement. Even Senator Harry Flood Byrd has finally given up hopes. He arose in the Senate the other day and said: "Russia is an enemy and persists in being an enemy of free peoples. It is better to have her outside the family than inside the family."

On the same day, Attorney General Clark responded to an inquiry from Congressman Thomas of New Jersey, chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. The attorney general said he was "taking under immediate advisement" requests for information from the Committee party of the United States. J. Edgar Hoover is an official who has never studied his job since he became head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation long ago. Hoover agrees with the Communists who have caused the most trouble in the world.

The highest and most dependable sources of the Federal Government of the United States have advised the above conclusion. Every reader of this item should consider these direful warnings. Russia Electric!

Of all the things the Government has taken over the greatest of all is Rural Electrification. The Rural Electrification Administration has approved three loans totaling $1,135,000 to three rural electric cooperatives in the States of Florida, South Carolina and Missouri. The Department of Agriculture announced today. The funds will be used to finance rural electric facilities including 617 miles of rural distribution lines to serve 1,948 farms and other rural establishments. Construction will proceed as rapidly as materials become available. The plan provides that the Government will loan the money to farm groups to construct "rural electrification." In hundreds of cases all of the loans have been paid—most of them before they have fallen due.

Housing Remains Unsettled

Even though there has been a steady upswing in construction of dwellings, including rental units, the position of the Government regarding Federal control of rents has not been definitely fixed. The House Banking Committee recommended to Congress a straight rent increase of 10 per cent. A day before the Senate Banking Committee had previously refused to approve such a measure.

President Truman thereupon sent a message to Capitol Hill in which he demanded that present rent controls be continued until June 30, 1948.

SMOKE RINGS

By Charles Vettner

Smoke Rings fans have literally moved Old Smoke under with communications this past week. Glad folks like the ring so much and glad you like that Jefferson County recreation work. Always remember that it's not just Smoke and Oakley doing the recreation work.

There's also Max Sanders and his hard - working recreation board, composed of Ray "Sit in My Corner" Bear, Ethel Lovell, Father Newman and jovial Le Tinsley.

Smoke Rings think it's about time he devoted his friendly column to these people who have given Jefferson County so much work and have asked to be returned to her home at Kent's Creek after a visit with Mrs. Lizzy McGee.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Parrish, Mr. and Mrs. Nic McArthur, Miss Georgia Porter and Mrs. Hassee Parrish were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Porter.

Mrs. J. L. Coomer and Mrs. J. S. Clark returned Friday from the W. C. S. Conference at Hopkinsville.

U. S. Resumes Shipment Of 'Golden Weed' to China

Renewed postwar shipment of the "golden weed," from the United States to China recalls one of the earliest chapters of American foreign trade. The withered root of the plant is a valuable source of opium for many, although American scientists have said that it has no narcotic value. As late as 1945, China received more than a million dollars worth from American sources.

The first ship that sailed directly from the United States to China—"Empress of China"—out of New York in 1784—carried more than 20 tons of opium. It was growing wild in the woods of New England and along the Hudson river bank.

The weed was scarce in the orient, where it was highly prized. Once found in Manchuria, in what was considered imperial reserves, and was collected by spies and soldiers of the American army.

Bacteria Release Oil

The possibility of using certain types of bacteria to increase the recovery of oil from subterranean deposits is suggested in a patent issued to Dr. Claude E. Zöbel, associate professor at the University of California. While testing various kinds of bacteria for their ability to moisten crude oils, Dr. Zöbel observed in March, 1945, that certain oil-producing bacteria, when fed from test tubes filled with calcareous material prepared to simulate underground oil-producing conditions, dissolved calcareous material, crowding out the oil physically, and by producing surface-active substances, literally "bacteria soap."

The many friends of Dr. L. S. Settle are sorry to hear of his serious illness. He suffered a stroke Friday and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, Saturday morning.

Norman McGee is slowly improving but still suffering with some broken ribs from a fall into a pit in the new garage of M. R. Porter.

Mr. and Mrs. "Pat" Daugherty recently entertained the following guests for all day, Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Bean, Mr. and Mrs. Farnsworth Hamed, Miss Helen Brent of Louisville, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Moore, Mrs. Chas. Conlin, Mr. and Mrs. Zennet Bert, Mrs. Sallie Pingle, Mr. Elmer Ping, Lebanon Junction.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hall were hosts for the first of the series of dinner Saturday evening: Mr. and Mrs. Guy Cassell and Jackie, Louisville, Mr. and Mrs. Bryant Moore, Buena Vista, Mrs. Bessie Owen, Miss Corinne Owen and Mr. Tom Hall.

The Senior Play at the school last Tuesday night was pronounced excellent by all who attended. The large crowd filled the auditorium and all the players seemed to be cast in the parts exactly suited to their talents. More than $100.00 was the door receipt.

The Senior Play at the school last Tuesday night was pronounced excellent by all who attended. The large crowd filled the auditorium and all the players seemed to be cast in the parts exactly suited to their talents. More than $100.00 was the door receipt.

SMOKE RINGS

By Charles Vettner

Smoke Rings fans have literally moved Old Smoke under with communications this past week. Glad folks like the ring so much and glad you like that Jefferson County recreation work. Always remember that it's not just Smoke and Oakley doing the recreation work.

There's also Max Sanders and his hard - working recreation board, composed of Ray "Sit in My Corner" Bear, Ethel Lovell, Father Newman and jovial Le Tinsley.

Smoke Rings think it's about time he devoted his friendly column to these people who have given Jefferson County so much work and have asked to be returned to her home at Kent's Creek after a visit with Mrs. Lizzy McGee.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Parrish, Mr. and Mrs. Nic McArthur, Miss Georgia Porter and Mrs. Hassee Parrish were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Porter.

Mrs. J. L. Coomer and Mrs. J. S. Clark returned Friday from the W. C.
